Managing Page Breaks in Contracts

There are two different ways you can manage the page breaks in the contracts you export out of the Whitespace Platform. These are: (item 1) choosing to insert a page break after specific contract headings, and (item 2) deciding which contract sections end with a page break.

You can manually insert a page break at the end of any contract heading:

- Mouse over the contract heading.
- Click on the arrow that appears below the title.
- Select 'Insert Page Break Below' from the popup list of options.

Please note: You will have different options on the pop-up list for contracts at different stages in the placing process, but the 'Insert Page Break Below' option will always be there.

Once you have inserted a page break, this is shown in the contract view as a dotted line below the heading.

You can also remove any manually-inserted page break:

- Mouse over the contract heading immediately above the page break.
- Click on the arrow that appears.
- Select 'Delete Page Break Below'.

During export, each contract section can end with an optional page break.

These section breaks are disabled for each section by default, so that the contract exports as one continuous piece.

You can enable any of these automatic end-of-section breaks during the export process – so that the following section starts on a new page – by unticking the section's — 'Remove page breaks' entry on the Export screen.

Please note: The options shown above have no effect on manually inserted page breaks (item 1). They only change the automatic breaks after each section.
